A Passage in the Life of St. Augustine.

ANONYMOUS

"Austin" is another form of "Augustine."

ONG pored St. Austin e'er the sacred page,
And doubt and darkness overspread his mind;
On God's mysterious being thought the Sage, The Triple Person in one Godhead joined.

The more he thought, the harder did he find
To solve the various doubts with fast acose;

And as a ship, caught by imperious wind,
Tosses where chance its shattered body throws, So tossed his troubled soul, and nowhere found repos

Heated and feverish, then he closed his tome,
And went to wander by the ocean-side,
Where the cool breeze at evening loved to come,
Murnuring responsive to the murnuring tide;
And as Augustine o'er its margent wide,
Strayed, deeply pendering the puzzling theme,
A little child before him he espied:
In earnest labor did the urchin seem,
Working with heart intent close by the sounding stream.

He looked, and saw the child a hole had scooped, Shallow and narrow in the shining sand, O'er which at work the laboring infant stooped, Still pouring water in with busy hand. The saint addressed the child in accents bland: "Fair boy," quoth he, "I pray what toll is thine? Let me its end and purpose understand." The boy replied: "An easy task is mine, To sweep into this hole all the wide ocean's brine."

"O foolish boy!" the saint exclaimed, "to hope That the broad ocean in that hole should lic!"
"O foolish saint!" exclaimed the boy; "thy scope Is still more hopeless than the toll I play. Who think'st to comprehend God's nature high in the small compass of thine human wit! Sconer, Augustine, sconer far, shall I Confine the ocean in this tiny pit Than finite minds conceive God's nature infinite!"

Professor F. L. Stevens, bacteriologist to the Raleigh Milk Commission, roports to Mayor Joinson that he finds samples of milk which he has analyzed from the various Raleigh dairies in very bad condition, showing poor management of the dairies and that a large part of the milk being used here is both filthy and a menace to the health of the people.

In an interview with General Passers agent Agaplee, of the Southern Railway, he says:

"The time was when the passenger business in the South during summer months did not amount to much, except in the matter of local excursions, and some people, of course, going to the Caster and Northern resorts. In the wonderful business development, however, in the South, within the last eight or ten years, things have changed.

"As for the Southern Railway, our summer travel is quite as important as our winter travel. In the winter people from the North, East and West go South to visit the Florida, Georgia and Carolina resorts. In the summer our people in the South now appear for the most part to be able to enjoy summer outings, and our travel during June, July and August is probably greater than at any other time of the year. While a numangust is probably greater than at any other time of the year. While a number of people go to the Eastern seashove and mountain resorts, and also to the lake region, and some to the Rocky Mountain section, more go to the mountain resorts of North Carolina, East Tennessee and Virginia than anywhere else. Within the last few years there has also been a good early summer business to South Atlantic Coast places, such as Atlantic Beach, off the coast of Jacksonville; St. Simon's Island, near Brunswick, Ga.; Isle of Palms, adjacent to Charleston; Morehead City, N. C.; also Virginia Beach and Old Point Comfort, all of which attract a great many of our Southern people during the month of three particularity.

We will also have summer sleeping car service between Winston-Salem, Greensboro and Morehead City.

"We also expect to make considerable improvement in our summer service in Virginia, and have grranged for additional passenger train between Washington, D. C., Manassas and Strasburg, and very frequent service between Washington, Leesburg and Bluemont, as there are many Washingtonians who spend the summer in that part of Virginia.

"We have also arranged to put in some short service connecting up our through lines between Richmond, Durham and Raleigh, N. C., with Buffalo Lithia Springs and Mocklenburg, Chase City, Va.
